Florida Resort Town Is Called Underworld Mecca For "Vicious Hoodlums"

J. Edgar Hoover Charges They Operate without Interference from Miami Authorities

SMILES AT TRAGEDY

Washington, Feb. 6 (AP) — The Miami, Fla., resort area was described to Congress by J. Edgar Hoover today as an underworld mecca for "vicious hoodlums" who operate without interference from local authorities.

The director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, also charged that police officers gave only "lip service" to government attempts at cleaning up the condition.

Hoover's accusations were made to a House Appropriations subcommittee on January 10, but made public today with other testimony concerning Justice Department appropriations.

"The attorney general saw fit last spring," Hoover said, "to direct that the FBI make an extensive survey of conditions in that area and find out why it was that some of the most vicious hoodlums in this country could proceed to a place and operate with such complete immunity and without interference by local authorities."

These charges brought from Senator Pepper (D-Ma) an assertion that the FBI chief, "unintentionally no doubt," had done Miami and its public officials an injustice.

The senator added a belief that the whole matter can be handled as effectively in the ordinary course of law enforcement as upon the front pages of the newspapers of the country."

Hoover charged that the Miami Beach chief of detectives, whom he did not name, was "either guilty of malfeasance or nonfeasance" in investigations of the 1935 theft of $40,000 worth of jewelry, a case which later resulted in the conviction of Charles Call and Nicholas Montone. He asserted that the indictments were returned on the FBI's evidence, "which could have been developed by the local authorities."

"Confidence games," he said were widespread in the Miami area. He added that "we have good reasons to believe that the operations of confidence men in the Miami area are carried on at least with the knowledge of some law-enforcement officials."

"In connection with these conditions, which had extended over a period of years," the FBI head declared, "we had received assurances from the local authorities that they were glad to fully cooperate. But they have not done so. They have only given lip service."

Kirke L. Simpson Misses First Day Of Work with A. P.

Washington, Feb. 6 (AP) — Kirke L. Simpson, who has covered first line news for the Associated Press for thirty-one years, today missed his tour at the office for the first time because of illness. Influenza kept him at home.

Joining the Associated Press in 1908, he toured the country with the first Roosevelt in 1911, reported the capture of Vera Cruz in 1914, and won the Pulitzer prize for his reporting of the entombment of the Unknown Soldier in 1921.

Simpson is known to hundreds of editors for his analyses of American political developments. In recent months he has been writing a daily interpretive story of the European wars.

Once before, when he was touring with Theodore Roosevelt, Simpson suffered a painful ear infection, but continued "on call" for assignment.

Tearful Plea of Comely Blonde Fails To Halt Wedding Ceremony

Thelma Spear Asserts She Is Common-law Wife of Ludwig Lewisohn

Baltimore, Feb. 6 (AP) — The tearful plea of a comely blonde who dramatically entered a temple to proclaim herself the "wife, muse and soul" of Ludwig Lewisohn and demand that "this wedding must stop" failed today to halt the marriage of the Jewish author to tall, blue-eyed Edna Manley.

Lewisohn and Miss Manley stood before Rabbi Edward L. Israel, ready to take their nuptial vows.

when Miss Thelma Spear rushed into the Har Sinai Temple, accompanied by her attorney, Bernard Sandler, and a blue-eyed, six-year old boy, whom she said she bore to Lewisohn.

With artistry attesting her years as concert soprano, she asserted: "This wedding must not take place. I have been his wife, his muse, his soul."

The gray-haired, fifty-eight-year old writer and his thirty-one-year old fiancee, former Rochester, N. Y., newspaperwoman, slipped out of the room to avoid the unexpected commotion caused by the "other" woman.

William Pelley Appears before Dies Committee

Brands "Pelley Letters" as Rank Forgeries; Praises Texan

Washington, Feb. 6 (AP) — William Dudley Pelley, goaded Fuehrer of the Silver Shirt Legion, appeared dramatically out of the nowhere today to explode any idea that he and Rep. Martin Dies of Texas have an under-the-table agreement.

Long a will o' the wisp to investigators working for Dies' committee on un-American activities, Pelley nonchalantly showed up on Capitol Hill and branded the now-notorious "Pelley letters" as rank forgeries. These letters, signed with the name "Pelley," had predicted Dies would not go out of his way to call Pelley for questioning.

"None of those letters were written by me, or signed by me," Pelley informed a House Rules subcommittee. "I don't know anything about them."

"I'm giving Martin Dies an absolutely clear bill of health," he told reporters. "I admire the work he's done."

Then, in rapid-fire sequence, the following events occurred:

David Mayne of Washington, former aide of Pelley's blandly asorted before the subcommittee that the manufactured the letters "right out of clear air." He had previously said that his motive was to put foes of the Dies committee "out on a limb" by turning the letters over to them.

Rep. Hook (D-Mich), fiery critic of Dies' methods and the man who started the whole public rumpus by putting the letters into the congressional record, finally acknowledged that they were the "figment of somebody's imagination." He got up in the House, withdrew the letters from the record, and proclaimed that he "wouldn't be too small to extend my apologies to anybody."

Down in Asheville, N. C., Sheriff Laurence E. Brown despatched telegrams to the Washington, D. C., police, the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Dies committee asking that Pelley be held for him. Pelley was convicted in 1935 of violating the state "Blue Sky" securities law, and a Superior Court judge has accused him of violating the conditions on which his jail sentence was suspended.

However, the Dies committee wants to question him further here. It slapped a subpoena on him today, and Acting Chairman Starnes (D-Ala) said that as long as Pelley was under this subpoena neither state nor federal officers could interfere.

The committee has denounced Pelley, a distributor of anti-Semitic literature, as head of one of the (Continued on Page Two)

Superior Reich Facing Issues, Goebbels Says

Fight with Western Powers "Will Be No Child's Play"

Berlin, Feb. 6 (AP) — Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels in an address to subordinates tonight warned that settling accounts with the Western powers "will be no child's play."

But the German people, he said, are convinced that "this time there will be a final big decision with the states which are trying to eliminate Germany as a power factor."

Goebbels said the German people are confident that it is a superior Reich which faces today's issue.

"Germany has taken note of the will of its enemies, which is to crush Germany once and for all," Goebbels said. "Calmly, with sober determination, the Reich faces the decision on this issue. Confidence in our absolute superiority in all fields does not admit the slightest doubt as to the outcome."

"Certainly we know that settling accounts with the Western plutocracies will be no child's play. But Germany hears from the lips of the Fuehrer that the Reich hasn't been sleeping the last five months. Really, everything has been thought of, measures for every contingency have been anticipated so Germany can follow the Fuehrer in utter confidence."

For every German, Goebbels continued, there is only one pertinent question: "How shall we win this war?" Everything else is subordinate, nothing else means anything, all that we do, say, think, undertake or prepare must be of service to the end of answering this all-important question."

British To Ration Fresh Meat after March Eleventh

Pinch of War Is Brought Home to Citizens of England

By J. C. STARK

London, Feb. 6 (AP) — Announcement of rationing of fresh meat effective March 11 at a rate of a bit over a pound a week per person brought the pinch of war home today to the British, whose sea lanes have been the object of unrelenting German attack.

Parliament received the rationing news along with the brighter word from Prime Minister Chamberlain and Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax that a British-Japanese quarrel over halting of a Japanese liner was near a settlement without Britain surrendering her belligerent rights.

Food Minister W. S. Morrison announced that fresh meat would be added to the list of rationed foods which already include sugar, butter and ham and bacon.

Each person over six will be limited to fresh meat valued at one shilling, ten pence-about thirty-six cents. That means each will be entitled to from one pound to one pound and a half, including bone and fat. Younger children will get half rations.

The precautions were taken following yesterday's wave of blasts in London, Birmingham and Manchester after the refusal of Home Secretary Sir John Anderson to reprieve the two men, convicted of participating in a bombing in which five persons died at Coventry last August 25.

In Dublin, where Nationalist feelings mounted to the highest point in years, a group of young men yesterday afternoon attempted to parade past the office of the British representative.

John Dulanty, Ireland's High Commissioner in London, laid an appeal for clemency before Prime Minister Chamberlain last night at a twenty-one point conference but was noncommittal when he left and gave no rise to optimism for the doomed men.

Police blamed the blasts upon the IRA, and with the feeling of Irish Nationalists running the highest in years, took widespread precautions to avert another bloody chapter in the age-old Irish-British independence.

Another reminder of war's grimness came from Chamberlain who said the government was considering legislation providing the death penalty for disclosure or permitting leakage of valuable information.

The British-Japanese exchange over the halting of the liner Asama Maru Jan. 20, when twenty-one German seamen were seized, was followed swiftly today by blasts in London, Birmingham and Manchester reminiscent of last summer's widespread pre-war bombings.

The condemned men are Peter Barnes and James Richards, convicted of participating in a bombing at Coventry last August 25 in which five persons were killed.

They awaited execution at Winton Green Gaol, Birmingham. The prison itself and nearby streets are under heavy police guard.

Third Term Talk, Rumor and Gossip Heard in Capital

Many Members of Democratic National Committee See Roosevelt

Washington, Feb. 6 (AP) — Third term talk, rumor and gossip dominated the discussions of those members of the Democratic National Committee who stayed in town today for an informal reception and tea at the White House.

They trooped in to shake President Roosevelt's hand and receive from him some assortments before the Mannerheim line after repelling Soviet tanks and manpower which broke five times in futile assault against single Finnish base.

This new technique of "blitz" attack—swift, brief and deadly—by the Finnish air force was begun last night, and was resumed after the early twilight fell today.

Couriers from the front lines said the campfires of the Soviet attackers were the key to success of the raids. They explained that the Russians had massed great numbers of infantrymen in the Summa sector, twenty miles south of the Finnish held City of Viipuri, without adequate provision for shelter against the cold and that the troops were forced to shiver about open fires in order to keep from freezing.

Make Splendid Targets

These fires made splendid targets for the Finnish bombers. Other, farther-ranging planes meantime bombed Soviet troop columns with increasing frequency.

A Finnish officer returned from the Mannerheim line area of the Karelian Isthmus said the Summa front, about eleven miles long between Muolaajarvi and Hatjalahti, had suffered the most violent artillery bombardment of the war.

"The area is as full of shell craters as any part of the Western front during the World war," he declared.

Asked when he thought the Summa attack would end, he replied: "When the Russians have lost enough men and tanks and realize they cannot get through anyway."

The present attack started six days ago with a terrific artillery bombardment. Three hundred guns fired continually on Finnish lines.

At the same time, Mrs. Lucretia Grady, California housewife, said a recent tour of many Southern and Western states revealed that third term sentiment was "overwhelming."

National Chairman James A. Farley, asserting that "everything is under control more or less," told reporters he planned a two-week vacation in Florida.

Rep. Martin (Mass.), the Republican floor leader, expressed the opinion today that the Republican convention would be held in June.

Committee Asks Additional Funds For Investigation

Will Request $350,000 to Continue Probe of Labor Board

Washington, Feb. 6 (AP) — The House committee investigating the Labor Board decided late today to ask for an additional $350,000 to continue its inquiry. Chairman Smith (D-Va.) intends to submit the request to the House tomorrow.

The vote may provide an indication of the House's attitude toward changing the Wagner law. Criticism of the statute and of the board which administers it has been presented to the committee, and Smith expressed the opinion that it ought to prepare legislative recommendations in time for Congress to act at this session.

The decision to ask for more funds was reached at a closed meeting, Smith said that all members present — Reps. Haleck (R-Ind.), Routhz (R-Oio), Healey (D-Mass.) and himself — approved it. The fifth member — Rep. Murdock (D-Utah) — was away from the capital because of illness in his family.

Smith said that only about $10,000 of the $50,000 which the House had voted the committee last session remained on Feb. 1, and that this probably would be exhausted by March 1.

Whether the group would draft a preliminary report now would not be considered until Murdock could be present, Smith said. The committee must submit any recommendations to the House Labor committee, which has scheduled further hearings on the first of a series of proposed amendments stripping $1,178,739 from the amount the House had voted for the Civil Aeronautics Authority.

HOPE SHATTERED

Leslie Lee Ross

Hope for saving the life of Leslie Lee Ross was given a tragic blow by a cable from American Consul General Emil Sauer in Germany denying reports that a scientist there had discovered a cure for lymphatic leukemia. The girl, a victim of the rare blood disease, is in Children's Hospital, Washington, D. C.

Meanwhile, Tammany Hall men in New York reported that Tammany's delegation of twenty-two would go un instructed to the Democratic National Convention.

Senator Donahay (D-Ohio) made a new move in the complex Democratic situation in Ohio. He proposed that the Democratic State Central Committee be called together to adopt a program.

Donahay was originally put forward as a favorite son candidate by Ohio political leaders favorable to a third term, with an understanding that he would release the delegation to President Roosevelt at the proper time. More recently it has been reported that Charles Sawyer, Ohio National Committee man, would seek that role. Donahay did not disclose whether he would oppose Sawyer in the Ohio preferential primary.

Sawyer, meanwhile, told reporters that in his opinion Mr. Roosevelt could carry on.

Bruce Endorsed By Anne Arundel Central Group

Democratic Politics Boil
Over after Announcement Is Made

Annapolis, Feb. 6 (AP) — Anne Arundel county Democratic politics boiled over today when the County Central Committee announced endorsement of Howard Bruce for the U. S. Senatorial nomination and county elective officers immediately organized a republican movement.

John L. Steiff, chairman of the Central Committee, said the resolution of endorsement passed 4 to 2, with Cleveland Chance, a member absent.

Albert N. Woodfield, Anne Arundel member of the house of delegates, countered with the statement that four members of the seven-member committee had previously signed an endorsement of Senator George L. Radcliffe, the incumbent.

Woodfield listed the signers of the Radcliffe endorsement as John Lipin, J. Alvin Ford, Thomas Williams and Chance.

Williams also signed the Bruce resolution endorsement released by Steiff.

Williams, who is secretary of the Central Committee, admitted he had first signed the Radcliffe endorsement, and later signed the Bruce resolution as secretary. He said he now considers the first signature a "mistake."

Woodfield and Elmer M. Jackson, Jr., another delegate, said at least five of the six delegates from the county had given their support to Radcliffe.

Woodfield said he was circulating a petition among all elective officeholders in the county pledging support to Radcliffe and repudiating the Central Committee's action.

State Aid Reason Anne Arundel Has Endorsed Bruce

Annapolis, Feb. 6 (AP) — State aid for Anne Arundel county dictated the endorsement of Howard Bruce for the Democratic senatorial nomination by the County Central Committee. Chairman John L. Steiff said today.

"After all, O'Connor is governor and we've got to back his candidate if we expect to get the things we need in the county," Steiff said when asked about a statement on the endorsement, "we need a new bridge over Stony creek, and the state could not help us with our problem of finding $40,000 to pay our salaries to negro school teachers."

You can't get anything by fighting the state administration. You've got to go along. We endorsed Bruce for what we thought were the best interests of the county."

Last rites of the church tonight from a priest. Both prisoners were reported to be calm.

In London today two balloon-and-acid-type bombs like those used previously by the I.R.A. exploded in a mail truck at crowded Euston station, terminus for Irish mail trains, injuring five postal employees.

The explosion in Birmingham and at Manchester occurred in mail bags at the general post offices.

The government was deluged with appeals for clemency from Irish leaders from Premier Eamon De Valera down, supported by many mass meetings in recent weeks. Tonight Ireland's high commissioner in London, John Dulany, acting on orders from Dublin, laid such an appeal before Prime Minister Chamberlain himself.

Scotland Yard and police of Birmingham received numerous anonymous warnings by telephone and mail about dire things that might happen if the executions should be carried out.

A Cork Irish Republican leader, Tom Barry, telegraphed De Valera asking him to request a four-day reprieve for the condemned men to enable him to place before the British government "proof" that the condemned men are innocent. Details of this alleged proof were placed before the Home secretary today.

The case assumed greater importance as the hour of execution approached, many persons both in England and Eire (Ireland) fearing the hangings might touch off bitter civil warfare over Irish partition, a main target of the I.R.A. program.

"Kin-Mother" New Word Chosen for Mother-in-Law

New York, Feb. 6 (AP) — Here's the new word for your mother-in-law: "Kin-Mother."

After a long arduous search, 600 members of the Mother-In-Law Association hit upon that as a better word."

Whether the organization would change its name to the "Kin-Mother Association" was not disclosed.

Among the other names proposed as a substitute for "Mother-In-Law" were: "Belle-Mere," "Mother-Eureka," "Ersatz-Mother," and "Mother-Link."

McNutt and Dewey Are Best Dressed In Political Arena

Cleveland, Feb. 6 (AP) — Democrat Paul V. McNutt and Republican Thomas E. Dewey "are probably the best dressed men in the political arena," the Merchant Tailors and Designers Association decided today at its National convention.

The Association omitted "the professional clothes horses" — actors, society and clothing men — from its annual list of the nation's "best dressed" men, who were not ranked in order.

Some of the others, with comments:

Angier Biddle Duke and Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt — "young men of remarkable accomplishment for their years who have observed very closely the amenities of conventional dress in their social intercourse and who have discharged with great credit their responsibilities of inherited wealth."

Henry R. Luce, magazine publisher — "clings to many of the archaic elegancies of the nineteenth century, notably in his evening clothes."

William McChesney Martin, New York Stock Exchange president — "notoriously careless as to his personal appearance when he became a figure of national importance but has improved his dress so that it is a model of correct conservativeness."

Lucius Beebe, columnist — "Makes a profession of elegance but he is nevertheless included because he wears his clothes like a gentleman."

Harry J. Grant, Milwaukee newspaper publisher — "Noted for his Florida wardrobe."

Col. George Greenhalgh, Berryville, Va. — "Famous for his colorful evening dress and for his faultless hunting pinks."

Frank M. Chapman, Jr., New York and Hollywood — "Famous for his collection of hand woven Shetland tweeds."

voe constitutes an unspoken "no" since, under the Senate rules, the vote automatically defeats a proposal.

"On this vote," the bushy-browed Texan announced crisply today, "the yeas are 34 and the nays are 34. The chair votes yeas and the amendment is agreed to."

The amendment on which Garner voted cut $115,259 from the CAA funds contained in the $1,138,693,528 Independent Offices bill. The reduction had been recommended by the Senate Appropriations committee. A moment later the chamber again upheld the committee, 39-30, in cutting an additional $50,000 from the measure.

"All I want now is for him to marry me for Jimmy's sake, and pay off a $9,000 mortgage on my home (in Burlington, Vt.). He can divorce me then. I won't stand in his way," Miss Spear said before today's wedding.

The Vermont home was mortgaged, she said, to get funds to finance Lewisohn's divorce from his first wife.

New York, Feb. 6 (AP) — Ludwig Lewisohn and his bride said tonight that their first concern was to gain custody of his son from the woman who, with the six-year-old boy in tow, dramatically interrupted their Baltimore wedding ceremony earlier in the day on the claim she was his common-law wife.

"I am going to get back my boy," the author said, and his bride nodded, as they stepped off the train from Baltimore and headed for his Riverside Drive apartment.

He said that "by a friendly, mutual agreement last summer" he had been given custody of the child. The boy, called "Jim," was taken from him eight weeks ago by "tricking" his housekeeper, Lewisohn said.

The committee approved an appropriation of $107,379,000 for these functions for the fiscal year beginning next July 1, a figure $3,442,589 below that for the current year.

This further pruning brought the net congressional reduction in presidential budget estimates, after adding some restorations made by the Senate, to $158,000.

The French morning communiqué read, "nothing to report," while the evening communiqué merely said, "local activity of our patrols in the nearly $10,000,000 estimate for the Federal Bureau of Investigation. This sum included $2,488,000 for counter-subversive activities, a field in which J. Edgar Hoover, director, told the committee help was badly needed."

Meanwhile, France made a second protest to Japan against the repeated bombings on the French-operated Yunnan railway in Southwestern China, informed sources said.

Expert Says Temptations Should Not Be Thrown in Tot's Way

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

"Dr. Garry C. Myers' writes a mother 'I wonder whether you could help me with a very serious problem. I read your column every day and find so many helps and good common sense that I am turning to you now when I need help so badly.'

"My little boy, aged three and one-half, has gotten into the habit of stealing. He goes into my purse, his daddy's, his grandfather's, his grandmother's and takes the change, etc., scolded, pleaded, frightened, could think of no avail. He has a darling disposition and all the neighbors love him, so I don't know if he has tried to steal in the neighbor's homes or not. We have caught him times without number in our home and his grandmother's home. He sneaks to steal, but if caught, does not seem the least embarrassed, plainly stating that he wished a nickel of penny for gum, ice cream or candy. My parents and myself and husband have co-operated wonderfully in trying to correct him, but to no avail."

Hab Spending Money

"The child has always had a little money to spend (as much as the rest of the children). . . . But his daddy has been out of work and I have had to shut down quite tight. I have explained but do not know how well he has registered."

"Your chief trouble is," I replied, "that all of you have made this an emotional matter, playing up the act as stealing and you have thrown temptations in the tot's way beyond what he has been able to bear. Plan with the rest of his loved ones to avoid the word, 'steal' or 'stealing.' Don't leave purses lie around promiscuously."

Respect Possessions

"Make clear to the child what things are his and what are yours. Respect his possessions as you would have him respect yours. Treat his touching or handling your purse as you would his handling or touching matches. If you do not catch him until he has taken the money, do nothing. It's too late then. See that he never has an opportunity to touch the purse without your seeing him and administering immediate pain."

"Don't talk or explain any more. Never try to corner him if you suspect he has taken money. Count it over your error and not his. Give him a nickel regularly, say once a week, on a certain day, and no more.

"All you should read aloud to him and make him feel more secure. Answer all his questions and listen to his talk. Help him to make things from empty cardboard boxes and encourage him to color and draw on wrapping paper. Reduce commands. Show him more affection when he is good. Smile more at him. Make him feel he really is loved. Instead of spanking, assign him to sit on a chair, where you can see him, doing nothing, for approximately 20 minutes.

Solving Parents' Problems

"Q. Is it too late to change a child's attitudes and habits after he is five? A. Certainly not. Even at your age such change is possible. Otherwise you would not read this column."

"Q. What is the best way to attack the gambling menace to our children?

A. For all children to quit raising money by gambling devices and for most parents to quit gambling.

"Q. Should the P. T. A. buy school equipment?

A. As a rule, no. The big function of the P. T. A. is to promote better parenthood and better home-school relations.

For a Healthy Color

JUDY GARLAND . . . outdoor exercise gives her cheeks healthy color.

By HELEN FOLLETT

BLUSHING is the only trick a smart girl can't learn. Whether she turn on the rosy-pink glow if she could, the modern girl is not coy or naive. She is a clear-eyed, clear-thinking, young lady and knows what she's about.

When she does want is a healthy color in her cheeks. It's nice not to have to report to the rouge pad; it makes one feel superior. Girls who have a fair amount of outdoor life usually have glowing complexion.

Those who are blessed with zestful appetites, down their beefsteak and aspics with pleasure and enthusiasm, may suffer from pallor. Good circulation is a factor. One way, besides exercise, to get it is to have a salt glow every morning.

Stand in the bath tub, friction flesh all over the body with moistened table salts. The tiny crystals stir up the capillaries close to the surface of the skin. Rub briskly with the palms of the hands.

Exemptions Are Allowed for Dependents As Well As Children

one may be totally dependent upon the other.

A taxpayer who supports in his home his minor children over whom he exercises family control is classified as the head of a family, even though the children may have an income of their own sufficient for their maintenance. If he does not support them, by reason of their own income, but does exercise family control, he cannot be classified as the head of a family.

Dependent Individual, Also

If an individual supported is an adult and there rests upon the taxpayer a moral or legal obligation to provide a home and care for such individual, the exemption as the head of a family is allowed, provided the individual is financially dependent. If the individual is not financially dependent, the exemption, even though the taxpayer

For example, a widow who supports in one household an aged mother and a daughter 17 years old is entitled to an exemption of $2,500 as the head of a family plus a credit of $400 for each dependent, a total of $3,300. The $400 credit, however, does not apply to the wife or husband of a taxpayer, though

YESTERDAY: Romany finds that Baxter Tree is a staunch friend, helping her frequently with her radio scripts.

CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO

CHOLLY HELD the radio page of the Sunday Globe out to Romany as she awakened. Romany asked sleepily:

"What next?"

"There's a hardy room left for the programs. Look at your picture! It takes up half the page." Romany sat up in bed.

"Gimme, quick!"

She read:

"Farm Implement Heiress Makes Radio Bow Tomorrow. As Celeste, the new romance in Myra Noyes' hit 'Twilight of Love,' this new beauty, Romany, has come to the airwaves. Miss Haile also is in the race for the title of Miss Television. The contest takes place during the holidays by fan voting."

The picture showed Romany in Aunt Cissie's most seductive gown, her lovely back bared and her head turned so that her clear-cut, suntanned profile stood out beautifully.

It was framed by her jet black hair, sleeked over her ears, with a soft roll low on the neck.

"You look like royalty ought to look," Cholly sighed enviously. "Don't blame 'em for laying that heiress business on thick. Oh, Romany, aren't you lucky?"

"So will you be some of these days?" Romany predicted brightly, wishing again there were something she could do to help Cholly in radio. "If I could help you get a start!"

"As if living here chaperoning you isn't saving my life." Cholly tried to sound cheerful. "You stop worrying about me and enjoy your success! I'm just as happy as you about the breaks you're getting."

"I know you are, darlin'." Romany slipped into her house coat. "But I'd be terribly jealous if you were in my shoes and I in yours."

"Yes, you would," scoffed Cholly. "You're just the type!"

Brent and Romany were on the beach that afternoon when Dover arrived for the promised Sunday dinner. Cholly met him at the door in big white apron she'd found hanging in the kitchen. It was twice her size. Her face was flushed and there was a smudge of flour on her cheek. Dover kissed the smudge away.

"Woman!" He stood back holding her at arms' length. "If you weren't you, I'd almost say you'd spent hours picking out a costume to dazzle me with."

"Just for that," threatened Cholly, "I'll put arsenic in your fried chicken. I was going to change before you got here. But you're fifteen minutes early."

"I couldn't wait," grinned Dover. "You look like an angel costumed by Omar the Tentmaker."

Cholly started for the kitchen. "Do you want to come out here? I'm right in the middle of things."

Dove sniffed at pots and pans.

"Fried chicken, mashed potatoes, green beans, celery. Home-made apple pie! I came early just to make sure you really were going to cook."

The door bell rang. Cholly was rolling chicken in flour.

"I'll get it," said Dover.

He came back loaded down with packages.

"These seem to be for you."

Cholly looked perplexed. She wiped her hands on her apron.

"I didn't order anything sent. Maybe Romany did."

"No, they're for you." Dover could hardly see over the load in his arms.

"Take them into the living room." Cholly followed him out of the kitchen. "There must be some mistake."

Dover put the packages down.

Cholly turned away.

"That," she said very low, "is a closed chapter in my life. I—let's not talk about it. I've never heard from him since the afternoon he came into the store. I—guess he's through, too."

Dover seemed to bow to almost everyone in Landau's where the famous dance band later. Cholly felt uncomfortable because they seemed to be the center of attention. Brent and Romany were partly responsible for the interest, of course. But Cholly knew Dover's friends had hardly met her on the boat were wondering who she might be. He was so obviously attentive, so determined that they should know where he stood in case they did know she was the girl from the music store, that Cholly felt doubly conspicuous.

Fortunately, Pee Wee Tyler did not put in an appearance. At least that was a great consolation to Cholly.

But they were leaving Landau's at one o'clock, walking through the foyer, when Cholly looked up and straight into the eyes of Terry O'Rourke. At his side, sophisticated and dazzling in black tulle, was Myra Noyes. Romany glanced sideways at Cholly quickly and saw her face white.

Cholly could never quite know how her weak knees carried her into the door of Landau's and to Dover's waiting car. It was the first time she had ever seen Terry with another woman. And he didn't look at all down and out or heart broken. He looked gay—and indifferent. Her Terry!

Birthday Party

A party was held Friday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cioni, 140 Frederick street, in honor of the first birthday of their daughter, Patricia Ann.

Photos were taken of the guests and candy, ice cream and cake was served.

Those present were Judy McHenry, Nancy Crippen, Patty Ann on the table unsmilingly. Cholly opened the long box first. Two dozen American beauty roses! In another box were two bottles of champagne. Five pounds of candy. Several magazines.

She looked at Dove severely. Then she threw her arms around his neck happily.

"Thanks, Santa Claus! But don't let it happen again, or I'll never invite you to dinner."

Dover lied blandly:

"I didn't do it. They're probably from some old guy with whiskers who likes red hair and freckles. I go for blondes myself."

Dover was scrubbing vegetables for the salad when Brent and Romany arrived from the Beach.

"Well," Brent grinned, "if this isn't as touching a little domestic scene as these old eyes ever lit upon. Blow me down, if I don't smell orange blossoms around you."

"We calls it home," grinned Cholly. "And shut up before I put you to work. Come to think of it, I guess you and Romany had better set the table."

"I was afraid of that," sighed Romany. "But wait'll I take a shower. The guest shower is down the hall. Brent, I'll meet you at the silver cabinet in five minutes."

It was a gay dinner, and a delicious one. Dover ate as though it were his last meal.

"Charlotte!" He got up finally and crawled to one knee in front of her. "Will you marry me?"

Cholly studied prettily.

"Well!" Her eyes danced. "I'm afraid not. I don't think we could ever live on your meagre income."

Brent broke in.

"Yeah!" he nodded sadly. "It's too bad, too. And both of you so young and in love and fond of fried chicken."

"Maybe," sighed Romany. "If you spoke to your father, Dover, he'd increase your allowance a little."

"He won't," Dove shook his head forlornly. "He says I'll not get one cent over twenty-five thousand a year."

"The old skin flint!" Cholly sobbed. "It would serve him right if we got married and went on relief."

Later, the boys walked down to the beach while Romany and Cholly dressed to go out.

"Dove is mad about you," Romany told Cholly from the bathroom. "I'll bet million dollars he really will ask you to marry him."

"You're crazy!" Cholly yelled.

"Okay! I'm crazy! But I know love when I see it. He's adorable."

"The Authority on Authorities"

SET UP THE DUMMY
MOST PLAYERS are taught in their early days—and soundly—that the normal play for a suit contract involves elimination of losing cards from the hand which contains the longer string of trumps. When they are eliminated, the rest of the cards are good. That applies generally, but sometimes it is better to reverse the process and perhaps set up the dummy because, though it has a shorter string of trumps, it also has a smaller number of losing cards.

Birds Know Where To Come and Get It

Topeka, Kans. (AP)—It is a healthy appetite and a love for bovine company that is bringing thousands of starlings, a southern bird, to the Kansas cattle lands this winter.

Invasive the state for the first time in the memory of many a cattlemen, the starlings strike terror into cattle herds and have caused some stampedes as they dig into cow hides for warbles, the grub of a fly that lies under the fur of cattle during winter months.

The birds dart swiftly for cows and sink their sharp beaks far into their hides, apparently causing great pain. Experts say there is little the cattlemen can do except to keep their herds under guard and frighten the birds away.

Urge "Free Enterprise" To Assist Business

Pittsburgh, Feb. 6. (AP)—Phillip D. Reed of New York, chairman of the board of the General Electric Company, pleaded here for "free enterprise" in business, which he said the democratic system of government does not guarantee.

Noting that the democratic state "may under proper circumstances provide natural, healthy surroundings for the enterprise system," Reed said "it may equally be applied to a highly socialized economy" and added in an address before the Engineers Society of Western Pennsylvania:

"In other words, the broad concept of government of the people, by the people and for the people, though it definitely excludes the notion of rule by despot or by dictator, contains no inherent guarantees of the private enterprise system and no inhibitions against government activity in business, agriculture or other fields."

Babe Ruth made 714 home runs during his baseball career in the major leagues.

Kentucky Had U. S. President for a Day

Lexington, Ky. (AP)—Kentucky's bluegrass region is proud of its distinction in having produced a President of the United States — who was not elected, never sworn in and who did not draw a cent for his services.

He was David Rice Atchison, native of this county who later became Senator from Missouri.

At the age of 38, in such company as Clay, Calhoun, Webster and Seward, he was named president of the Senate.

President James K. Polk's term expired at midnight Saturday, March 3, 1849. President-elect Zachary Taylor asked that inauguration ceremonies be postponed until Monday, March 5, in observance of the Sabbath.

Since George M. Dallas, the Vice-President, also moved out of office Saturday night, Atchison was left in the position to take over.

Atchison said later that he slept through most of his one-day term.

Out-Gassed

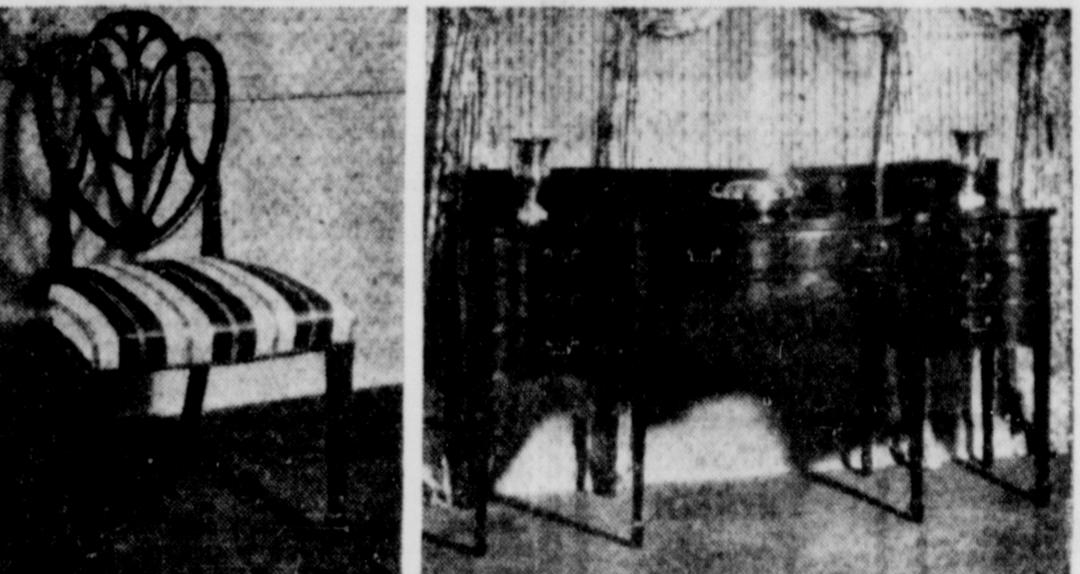

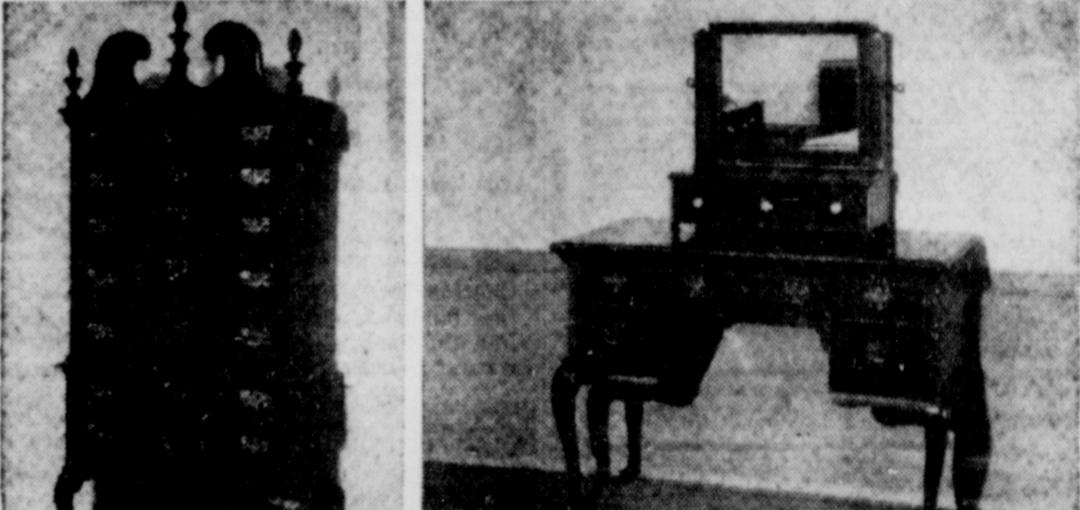

Oklahoma City, (AP)—Of all the things the Phillips Petroleum Company produces, natural gas is near the top of the list. In fact the company is one of the largest producers in the world. But on a recent cold morning the company's Capitol camp at Oklahoma City was so cold business had to be suspended. They were out of natural gas. The gas mains had frozen.

Bars All Radicals

New York, Feb. 6 (AP)—Directors of the American Civil Liberties Union have adopted a resolution banning supporters of Communism, Nazism or Fascism from serving on the ACLU's governing committee or staff.

The resolution specifically forbade such posts to anyone belonging to "any political organization which supports totalitarian dictatorship in any country, or who by his public declarations, indicates his support of such principles."

Within this category it included the Communist party, the German-American Bund "as well as native organizations with obvious anti-democratic objectives or practices."

The board also accepted the resignation of Dr. Harry F. Ward of Union Theological Seminary, ACLU serve as acting chairman. Other chairman for twenty years. The officers were re-elected.

Flock of Real Donald Ducks Tieup Traffic

Philadelphia, Feb. 6 (AP)—Donald Duck's country cousins—30 of them—came to town Monday.

Leaving William James' farm they single-filed into Northeast Philadelphia.

School children, turning out for lunch, began feeding the feathered troupe bread crumbs—at a busy street intersection. Motorists were halted. Two exasperated policemen fumed. Finally the bread crumbs were exhausted and the ducks departed.

"This happens every now and then," said Mrs. James gloomily when she located the ducks. "They simply like to roam."

Lawyer Accepts Summons
For Al Capone in Tax Case

Chicago, Feb. 5 (AP)—Abraham Tittlebaum, attorney for Al Capone, accepted service here of a summons in a $350,000 income tax suit against the former gang leader.

Government prosecutors announced that Capone would not be served personally at his temporary home in Baltimore, where he is being treated for a mental ailment.

Service of the summons was pressed after Federal Judge John P. Barnes informed the district attorney's office he would dismiss the suit unless the government was prepared to try it by April 1. "I don't think the attorney general has exercised the necessary diligence in prosecuting this case," the court had remarked.

Judge Barnes was informed that service had been withheld while Capone was in prison because the law required that service must be made at the usual place of abode.

Learning that Tittlebaum had accepted service on behalf of his client, Judge Barnes reset the case for June 2. The government is seeking taxes, plus penalties and interest, on Capone's income from 1924 to 1929.

Finds His Sister
After 35 Years

Minneapolis, Feb. 6 (AP)—Arthur Lavallee, Joplin, Mont., who as a baby of six months was given to another family by his parents while they camped in a covered wagon on the North Dakota prairies thirty-five years ago, found his sister here.

She is Mrs. R. L. Briley, Minneapolis. The parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gus Weesin, are dead, but a brother, Cornelius Weesin, lives in Marquette, Mich., and Lavallee hopes to see him soon.

In years of searching for his relatives, Lavallee pieced together a story of him his parents, camping, met Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Lavallee while en route from Minnesota to North Dakota. "Say, I'd like to have a little boy like that," the elder Lavallee told Weesin and so the baby went to a new home.

Later on, the boy learned he was adopted, heard where his real parents lived, Hinckley, Minn., and from there, through friends who knew of the family, he found his sister here.

Sheriff's officers tonight were seeking clues in the mysterious shooting. The body of Miss Ann Richards was discovered on the kitchen floor of the sisters' large two story house. The body of Miss Margaret Richards was lying on a platform on the stairs and Brown's body was at the head of the stairs, officers said.

Oliver Springs, Tenn., Feb. 6 (AP)—Two middle aged sisters and a negro servant were found shot to death in their home here, Sheriff Bob Smith reported.

Trichomonas May Cause Diarrhea Or Other Upsets

Small Unicellular Parasite Is Found Frequently in Human Intestine

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

What is a trichomonas infection?

The trichomonas is a small unicellular parasite. It is found quite frequently in the human intestine—with great regularity, indeed, when the gastric juice is diminished. Sometimes it changes from its harmless role and becomes troublesome. It may then cause diarrhea or other digestive upsets. In infants this occurrence is much more serious than in adults. In girl babies the trichomonas may enter the genitals and cause itching and discharge. In rare instances this occurs in adult women. A great deal of attention has lately been directed towards the condition in infants and children.

In the intestinal infestations the trichomonas is quite readily killed by the use of enemas, and the employment of a drug. The treatment of the vaginitis in girl babies is by warm water douches and local drug applications. The skin should be protected by a thick soothing

Long believed to be a nutritional disorder, it is now virtually proved that it yields to the use of nicotine acid. Nicotine acid is a part of the vitamin B complex. It is, therefore, proved that pellagra is a vitamin-deficiency disease.

Under the use of nicotine acid practically all cases of pellagra are restored to normal with almost magical rapidity. The must, of course, be kept upon an adequate diet in order to hold their gain.

Questions and Answers

A. G.: "Please give me a remedy for chilblains."

Answer: The best remedy is prevention. Chilblains are caused by combination of cold and wet continued without relief. Prevention of exposure by woolen socks and heavy shoes in going outdoors. If the feet have been chilled and wet the shoes and stockings should be removed and the feet cleaned with warm water and massaged. The important thing is to improve the circulation by massage and exercise. Warm oil rubbed into the skin of the feet on going to bed and then wearing woolen stockings in bed tend to prevent recurrence.

H. B. C.: "Will the absence of a proper amount of vitamin B in the system cause sciatic nerve trouble? Will thiamin chloride help sciatica?"

Answer: In my experience it is not this form of nerve trouble which is caused by lack of vitamin B, nor do I think that thiamin chloride, which is a concentrated form of vitamin B, is likely to help sciatica.

Patrolmen L. B. Boyd and Jay Marek, summoned on a complaint that a father was spanking his 15-year-old daughter, reported they "arrived at the conclusion, that the whipping was justified as the girl had sassed her father."

Abduction of Cullenbine Makes Your Flesh Creep

By JOHN LARDNER

New York, Feb. 6 (N. A. N. A.)—The story of the kidnapping of Roy Cullenbine, Detroit's No. 2 free agent, and of the deadly tie between Cullenbine and his abductors, the Brooklyn Dodgers, has just come to light. It makes your flesh creep.

Cullenbine was smuggled into Brooklyn the other evening by Leo Durocher, the Dodger manager, known to the trade as Lippy Leo. My sympathy in this case goes out to Mr. Durocher rather than to his victim. It was necessary to perform the dark deed in strict silence, and five minutes of silence have been known to make Mr. Durocher write in his chair like a man in torture.

Leo tiptoed into town bursting with repressed conversation—about $50,000 words, at a guess. He led Cullenbine by the hand. Both were as silent as shadows. The slightest sound might have betrayed Cullenbine's presence to the enemy, who would then have come whooping down upon the young outfielder to offer him more than Brooklyn's $25,000 bonus.

The Open Market

Not that they haven't had their chances already. Once Judge Landis freed him from the Detroit chain-gang, Cullenbine was out there in the open market, to be grabbed by the highest bidder. Brooklyn's offer was the best.

But Brooklyn wanted to be sure. Silent Larry MacPhail, the Dodger chieftain, imposed an oath of secrecy upon Durocher.

"Keep mum, Leo," he warned his Lieutenant. "Not a word till the trap is sprung."

"Not a word?" said Mr. Durocher, turning pale.

"Nossir. I will do the talking for the club," said Mr. MacPhail.

"That's what I was afraid of," said Mr. Durocher with a hollow groan.

However, Leo went bravely through with his part of the conspiracy. He smuggled Cullenbine into Brooklyn, led him on tiptoe through the lobby of a hotel, and hoisted him up in a soundproof room, far from the enemy's scents.

Having locked the door behind him, Mr. Durocher went straight to the desk in the lobby and burst into conversation like a drowning man gasping for air.

"Great weather we're having," he said to the clerk. "Looks like a warm spell. Not so much the heat as the humidity. Good for the crops. How's business? Don't answer that. Funny political situation, ain't it? How about this third term? What's Roosevelt up to? Personally, I'll take the city. You can have the country. Lot of difference, of course. You see more people in the city. Not so many people in the country. Listen pal, you look like an intelligent mug. If you will just restrain yourself for a couple of hours, I would like to tell you the story of my life. I was born—"

But A Spy Was There

And Leo babbled happily on, little suspecting that a spy had seen him enter the hotel with Cullenbine and that the secret was out.

Durocher had not reckoned with "Scoop" Zeltner, a slim and debonair rascal who is known as "The Eyes and Ears of Brooklyn, Including Red Hook." Nothing escapes Mr. Zeltner, except now and then a light fall of dandruff.

Mr. Zeltner was at his post behind a palm tree in the hotel lobby, scratching a few confidential notes in the bark. Suddenly he stiffened. It was not royal mortis. Mr. Zeltner's been inculcated against that. He stiffened because he saw Durocher and Cullenbine tiptoeing past him, where no Durocher and Cullenbine ought to be.

"Ha!" said the Eyes and Ears of Brooklyn, Including Red Hook. "What do I see?"

This was a rhetorical question. He knew what he saw. In a moment's time the Eyes and Ears of Brooklyn, Including Red Hook, was talking on twenty-five different telephones at once, like one of those chess masters, playing twenty-five boards simultaneously. By the time Mr. Durocher staggered into the street, $500,000 words higher, with the story of his life behind him, the world knew his secret. At least, it knew one of them.

"Curse the luck!" he exclaimed. Then he went to report to Silent Larry MacPhail, who forgave him, "I forgot about Scoop Zeltner," admitted Mr. MacPhail. "The Eyes and Ears of Brooklyn Including Red Hook, is everywhere. But what's the difference? I think we have Cullenbine in the bag."

It looks that way, all right. But no one will ever know how Lippy Leo Durocher suffered.

Garcia To Fight Overlin March 29

Los Angeles, Feb. 6 (AP)—George Parnassus, manager of Ceferino Garcia, said tonight he had approved plans for a New York title bout between the middleweight boxing champion and Ken Overlin for March 29.

The Filipino meets Henry Armstrong here Feb. 22, but since New York does not recognize ten-round fights as championships, that battle will not affect the titular nature of the Garcia-Overlin meeting.

Godoy Wanted To Get at Louis To Avenge Braddock

Tried To Get into Ring When Bomber Took His Pal's Title

By DILLON GRAHAM

Sports Editor, AP Feature Service

New York, Feb. 6—It seems that a Chilean soldier and an Italian bartender were fond admirers of an Irish stevedore who was badly beaten one night by a young Negro pugilist.

The chap who had served in the army of Chile and the fat little drink-mixer were incensed at the way the Brown Bomber battered the game Irishman who earlier that night had held the world's heavyweight championship.

Reports say that both had to be restrained from clambering into the Chicago ring and taking a punch at the new champion. Both vowed vengeance.

The former soldier and the rotund barkeep had fought in a preliminary bout. The Chilean, Arturo Godoy, had beaten the saloon owner, Tony Galento. Both saw Joe Louis knock out Jim Braddock.

Godoy started to climb into the ring after Louis. But Sixto Escobar, the flyweight who had learned to speak English, took a message from their American manager and explained to Godoy, in Spanish, that there might be trouble, perhaps even a race riot, if he charged into Louis. Godoy slumped back into his seat.

"Later," he said.

He Can't Do That'

When Galento visited Braddock's dressing room and saw Jim's terribly bruised face he unleashed a vicious roar and started for Joe's quarters. "He can't do that to my pal," Tony told Jim. But Tony was halted.

"Later," someone said.

Last summer Galento got his chance at the championship, his opportunity to strike a blow for his beaten pal. He had Joe groggy in the first round and down in the third but Galant Galento was knocked out in the fourth.

Down in Iquique, a little seacoast town in Chile, where his family made their living sword fishing in the Pacific, Godoy heard of the Louis-Galento fight. Godoy had left the States a year or so earlier to return home and rest on the small fortune picked up in American rings. And to fight now and then in Buenos Aires.

He thought of his fights with Galento—of the Pier 6 brawl he had won from Tony in the Hippodrome when referee Arthur Donovan let the two roughhouses rough it all they pleased. And of the night he had beaten the bulbous one in Chicago.

Godoy's Chances

He thought of the beating Joe gave Braddock and he was angry again. He wanted a crack at Louis. He figured that if Galento had been good enough to wangle a championship shot that he, who had twice beaten Galento, deserved a bout.

The match was made, Godoy arrived a few weeks ago. On Friday night in Madison Square Garden he gets his chance against Louis in the second sequel to that Chicago episode.

What chance has Godoy? As much as any of the others, maybe a little more. But not much. Arturo takes a punch well. He took a lot. Galento could sing and Tony never had him down, not even dazed.

Godoy hits hard, hard enough to stun Louis, perhaps even knock him out. He is young, fast, and smart enough that, should he be a much better bet to finish him off.

He's Not Afraid

Godoy's best punch, like Galento's, is a left hook. His right is fairish. Arturo comes of rugged peasant stock with a trace of the Aruacano Indian. He is swarthy, with high cheek bones and black eyes and crinkly black hair. He stands about six feet and weighs around 200.

Arturo began fighting when officers ordered him into the company boats at the army camp. He is the South American champion now and the biggest pugilistic hero down there since Firpo. It was Godoy who knocked Luis out in three rounds to halt Firpo's comeback a few months ago.

Godoy married a few months ago and brought his pretty young wife to the States with him.

She says Arturo will win. And we learned long ago not to argue with a lady, even if we hold space.

Radio Rights for Grid Contests at Princeton Likely

Yearly Assessment of Each Undergraduate Also Under Consideration

By LAWRENCE PERRY

New York, Feb. 6 (CNP) Two things at least may mark the financial conduct of athletics at Princeton as a result of the fact that football receipts last fall fell below estimated income, thus dealing the budget rather a savage blow.

First, it is likely that Princeton will depart from its policy of withholding from sale of the radio broadcast of football games in its stadium. At present Nassau and Harvard are the two universities which refuse thus to make capital of their games.

Another move may be the assessment of each undergraduate of a yearly sum.

Concerning this latter project it is a fact that several years ago the athletic authorities had the assessment plan under advisement. Details had been worked out, among them the payment by students of fifteen dollars a year each. At first it was planned to assess only students who were self-supporting, eliminating those paying their way. But in deference to student sentiment it was decided that no distinction should be made.

It is entirely likely, that had not the depression assumed an increasingly serious aspect, the project would have been put through and would be in effect today. If this were the case and, say 2,200 undergraduates were paying fifteen dollars each, more than $33,000 would be realized from this source alone. It would balance, with many thousands of dollars to spare, the 1939 deficiency in football receipts.

Stadium A Burden

Adding this to money accruing from the sale of broadcasting rights, Princeton's financial situation as to athletics would be happier than it is now. If the two experts are not adopted, others, it seems clear, will be.

The Palmer Stadium, for one thing, is an item requiring an annual outlay for repairs with sums involved often being significant. In fact, the Athletic Association, in addition to paying rental to the university for the big concrete amphitheater, has already spent more money in repair and restoration than the original cost of the structure, which was presented by Edgar W. Palmer and dedicated by Dartmouth in 1914. And there are other unusual plant and equipment charges.

The one measure already adopted by the athletic authorities to meet the present situation is destructive rather than constructive. The annual inter-scholastic meet, an event which has been an important feature on the Nassau athletic calendar for forty-two years, has been abandoned.

If the editors of the student publication, "The Princetonian," represent the sentiment of the undergraduate body this action is generally deprecated as a defeatist gesture. In an indignant protest against the measure the editors suggest the revival of the abandoned assessment plan and sale of broadcast rights in football to some sponsor, just as the other member of the big three, Yale, has done—to its great financial satisfaction.

What The Future May Hold

Princeton and Harvard have withheld from this action on the ground of commercialization of football, an attitude adopted in the face of factors of pronounced commercial cast in the conduct of football both at Cambridge and Princeton.

Goodly sums, the Princeton editors point out, would be realized from the sale of radio rights while graduates, far and wide, would have the privilege each autumn of following all games played by elevens of their alma mater instead of having to listen to descriptions of contests between Notre Dame and Southern California; Yale and Arpny, and so on. Student assessment is also advocated.

A very prominent Princetonian, with whom this writer has talked, regards the adoption of both plans as extremely likely to happen. If it does, who can say that the germ of something extremely important at Princeton has not been worked into the athletic blood stream—a general scheme of financing worked out by professional economists among the faculty and alumni by which football—a of standard to which Princeton has always been accustomed—and other sports would be carried on without gate receipts?

Petersburg Bows
Defeat Paw Paw To Romney 37 to 30

Petersburg, W. Va., Feb. 6—With Captain John Lookabaugh running wild, Coach Hubert Price's Ridgeley High floormen plastered a 49-38 defeat on Price's former protégés—the Paw Paw High cagers—here tonight, 37-30, but more than that it was the first time in four and a half years that Petersburg has lost a basketball game to a South Branch team.

Romney jumped away to a 12-lead at the quarter when Petersburg's second stringers started the game, and then ran it up to 25-8 at the half time out.

Petersburg started to get going in the third quarter but trailed 31-16 at the intermission and found the margin too wide to catch up in a last period rally.

Harrison was the big gun for Romney with 18 points, while Hill was high man for Petersburg with 11.

S.N. L. Calls for New Major-Minor Farm Pact

Wants Start on Agreement with Minor Circuits

Would Replace Present
Code Which Expires
Jan. 12, 1942

Schedule for 1940 Adopted with Cubs Opening at Cincinnati

By JUDSON BAILEY

New York, Feb. 6 (AP)—Taking cognizance of the many proposals, including one from Commissioner K. M. Landis for reconstructing the framework of organized baseball, the National League called today for an early start on a new major-minor agreement.

President Ford Frick was authorized to appoint a committee of four to meet with similar committees from the American League and the National Association (minor leagues) to draft a code to replace the one that expires January 12, 1942.

Frick said the American League already had expressed a desire for such a joint consideration and that he hoped the minor leagues would be able to name their representatives within a few weeks so that all parties could get started on the task quickly.

Landis Broke Deadlock

At the annual Winter meeting in Cincinnati last December the National League and the minors voted for amendments to the present agreement which would have forced Landis to relax his rigid restrictions on farm systems. The American League rejected them and the joint major leagues meeting then cast the deciding vote that in essence passed the proposed amendments.

Since then he has tightened the bans on farm holdings and suggested that they be done away with entirely.

Some National League club representatives at today's meeting pointed out that whatever regulations were included in the new major-minor agreement, whether they increased or decreased the limits of farm operations, would be entirely a matter for the leagues themselves to decide and would not be subject to the approval of Landis, whose term, incidentally, also ends January 12, 1942.

Open Day Games

The schedule for 1940 was adopted by the senior circuit today, but will be subject to scattered revisions because both the Pittsburgh Pirates and St. Louis Cardinals have arranged to play night baseball since the program was drawn up.

Cincinnati, the champion opening day town of baseball as well as the defending pennant-holder, has drawn the Chicago Cubs for the inaugural opposition April 16. In the other openers Brooklyn will be at Boston, Philadelphia at New York and Pittsburgh at St. Louis.

The South End Merchants regained third place in the South End Booster Basketball League by defeating the Smith Grocers 31 to 13 on Monday at the Penn Avenue School gym. In the other game the Garrett & Zilch crew stayed on the heels of the undefeated pacemaking Candy Kitchen team but five points in the last two sessions after being held to an 11-8 score at the half way mark.

"He can lead and then jump back before a counter, or he can come in low and bobbing, swinging a left hook and then getting in close and then grabbing and pulling. He won't give Louis a clean shot at him, and Louis won't dare let fly carelessly for fear of busting his hands on Godoy's head."

"A few rounds of this and Louis will tire. All heavyweights tire. The bout might drag on and on. Louis can't hit down, and he'll be puzzled, the same as he was against Galento."

"Of course, Godoy must look out for Louis' trick. Joe doesn't like fighting, so he'll start to break voluntarily, before the referee steps in. That's when he does his work. He'll break just enough so he is free, and wham, there goes his left hook."

Dumb Dan abruptly switched into a siding to couple on some ideas on fighters in general.

"They don't train like they used to," he complained. "A few of the top men, like Billy Conn and Louis, are always in shape. But as a whole they resent advice from oldsters who know what they're talking about. That's one reason Louis is good. He's followed Jack Blackburn's instructions."

He switched back to the fight at hand.

"This Godoy," he concluded, "is rough and tough. He had Galento looking at the referee for help. He should go ten rounds, anyway."

Married Life Is Something More Than a Dance

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage — Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Is life like a dance?—and nothing more?

There are certain young people nowadays who seem to think so.

A girl accepts a good-looking partner, whirls about with him for a year or two, then relaxes her interest as she sees somebody approaching who is even better-looking, even more magnetic, and who has the air of being about to cut in.

A few months later, after a couple of divorces, four young dancers—shall I call them?—have changed partners. Nobody has suffered. Nobody has sacrificed. Everybody is exhilarated. This is the second movement of the modern dance.

But can this really be marriage? you will ask me. Because in such a scheme of things, the most impudent part of marriage seems to be left out. What about love? Where does that come in? For love isn't a gay, careless, on-and-off affair. It cuts deep.

Love Takes One

The truth is that sooner or later love has to be taken into account. The dance halts, the music pauses, something has happened. Love has seized two of the dancers. And from the moment that they have been caught up into the heaven of their own particular joy, they have abandoned forever the frivolous and meaningless dance of those ignorant of love.

There is the case of Vivian, a girl I know personally. Vivian married. But marriage meant nothing in particular to her or to her rich young husband. They were a handsome pair, with no responsibilities and no children. They simply joined in the dance.

After a year or two, they fell apart. Oh yes, there was another man. And another girl. A change of partners. That was all.

An Extreme Case

But Vivian's was an extreme case. In a year or two more, she went through another divorce. And she had her third marriage.

This time, it was different. But nobody knew. To her acquaintances, even to many of her friends, what had happened was that Vivian had a third partner. It was beginning to be a little hard to keep track of her changes of name and connections. But nobody minded.

Vivian couldn't have told that at least she was married in the real sense. The people she knew wouldn't have understood, wouldn't have believed. She couldn't have explained that at last she knew love. To her, her husband was new universe. To him, she was a marvelous young divinity. Both felt that the years they had spent apart from each other were wasted. Both looked ahead to an eternity of love. It was, I am sure, a perfect marriage.

And it lasted less than a year. Vivian's husband was killed in a motor accident.

Hopelessly Lonely

At twenty-eight, she is the most desolate woman I know, the most hopelessly lonely. Her friends do not understand her grief, as they did not understand her happiness. To them, she is a girl who is for the moment without a dancing partner. Too bad, they think but most really serious. The world is full of partners. A girl with Vivian's attractions and with a little fortune of her own has merely to choose.

They are a small group of course, numerically, these strangers to love, these dancers on the surface of life. Because they are young and moneyed for the most part good-looking, they are thought fortunate. But can there be any supreme good fortune that leaves love out of account? You and I know better.

Thrice-Robbed Man Gets the Point

Houston, Tex. (AP)—Three times in three months the delivery boy of Sam Bass' liquor store had been robbed of his money and packages. Sam was tired of it.

When an order came in for several bottles of liquor and change for $10, Sam said, "Oh, oh! This is a phony. I'll take this delivery myself so we won't lose it."

A negro held up Sam at the point of a knife and relieved him of his bottles and money. Sam went to the police.

Sport Injuries Now Carry a Premium

Sacramento, Calif. (AP)—Some 300 high school football players in this state have filed claims for insurance payments, under a new cooperative "protection fund."

Supported by premiums paid by the athletes, student associations or the schools themselves the organization is designed to give free medical care in case of injury. Insurance for football players costs $1 a season while participants in any other sport pay 50 cents. Benefits range as high as $200 for the more serious injuries. Fracture of one rib pays $5.

Nearly half of California's high schools participate in the fund, which is administered by the superintendent of schools at Pacific Grove.

Theaters Today

British Intelligence Is a "Timely Yarn"

Current events make an extremely timely film of "British Intelligence," the Warner Bros. picture featuring Boris Karloff and Margaret Lindsay, which comes to the Liberty theater tomorrow, for it tells a vivid tale of war-time espionage during the 1914-1918 World War.

Much of its interest, aside from its exciting incidents, rises from the thorough exposition it gives of the methods of operation which spies use in war-time. And it makes one great point which is probably as true today as it was then—that spies spend as much time spying on each other as they do in trying directly to obtain military information.

In fact, a the plot of "British Intelligence" unfolds, the audience is, for a time, just as mystified as the high officials of England and Germany as to just which nations some of the spies are really working for.

Thrice-Robbed Man Gets the Point

Houston, Tex. (AP)—Three times in three months the delivery boy of Sam Bass' liquor store had been robbed of his money and packages. Sam was tired of it.

When an order came in for several bottles of liquor and change for $10, Sam said, "Oh, oh! This is a phony. I'll take this delivery myself so we won't lose it."

A negro held up Sam at the point of a knife and relieved him of his bottles and money. Sam went to the police.

SYNOPSIS

THE CHARACTERS:

ROMANY HALIE, who wants to be a radio star.

CHOLLY O'NEILL, her pal, who plays in a music store.

BRENT NELSON, successful young announcer, in love with Romany.

DOVER M. WOOTH, wealthy scion, in love with Cholly.

MYRA NOYES, famous radio star and ex-fiancee of Brent.

TERRY O'ROURKE, a singer who had been engaged to Cholly.

BAXTER TREE, a continuity writer without a job.

YESTERDAY Cholly is taken back when she runs into Terry at a night club with Myra Noyes.

CHAPTER TWENTY-THREE

WHEN CHOLLY and Romany were getting ready for bed, Romany could see that Cholly was fighting tears. She knew that seeing Terry with Myra Noyes had been a shock. But she decided it would be very bad psychology to let her friend know she saw through her effort to appear indifferent.

"You could have bowled me over," she laughed gaily, "when I saw Myra and Terry walk in. Now, where do you suppose they, ever met?"

Cholly's voice was muffled.

"I—couldn't say."

"Well," Romany smiled, "I can't think of two people who deserve each other more! They're a good match. If Terry was looking for a girl to borrow money from, he couldn't have done much better. And he'll make a handsome gigolo."

Cholly winced, but Romany added brutally:

"Thank heaven he has found someone else! That's the reason he hasn't been around pestering you, I guess."

"Terry looks fine, don't you think?" Cholly sat down on the floor to take off her stockings. "I was surprised."

Romany laughed lightly.

"You didn't expect Terry to sit around and weep over you, did you? You forget men aren't like women. It doesn't take them long to turn around and see another pretty face."

"I guess you're right," Cholly said miserably. "I'm glad he was sober."

"The evening was yet young," flipped Romany.

"Maybe," sighed Cholly, "Miss Noyes will help Terry find a radio job. If he'd get a break, maybe he'd change."

"If he gets a break," Romany sniffed, "he will have just that much more money to throw away in night clubs. There's one leopard that will never change his spots. If he didn't change 'em for you, he certainly won't for Myra Noyes. Well, let's get some sleep. Tomorrow I'm a working girl!"

Adet and Anor have almost finished high school during their years in Europe and America. They want to go to college at home. Their book is the story of their own family in foreign lands. Half of the proceeds from its sale go to Chinese Relief, the children proudly announce.

The things they think . . . the things they say in their book are like the childhood questions many of us have wondered about but never put on paper.

Started first as exercises in English, the book grew eventually from a diary, parts of which the girls admit they would like to have omitted but felt they couldn't.

Consumers Speak

Those who spoke on behalf of the consumers were James K. Clark, Mr. and Mrs. George Savage, Mrs. Annie Plummer, Mrs. William Jones, Mrs. Albert James and Andrew Nelson, of Welsh Hill and Wrights Crossing, and William Allen of Eckhart. Mrs. James K. Clark presented a petition from all the consumers of Grahamtown, excepting eight she was until to con-went smoothly on Monday afternoon. Cholly tuned in from the apartment and marveled at Romany's Celeste. Her voice was low and musical, as different from the average run of cut and dried dramatic school voices as day from night.

Any one hearing Romany Halle once would never forget her. Sentimental little Charlotte wiped tears of happiness from her eyes. She was just as happy as though it were all happening to herself.

Trotter was relieved that apparently Myra had made up her mind to eat dirt as gracefully as possible. She ignored Romany as though she were mud under her feet, however, which was just as well. Romany took the same tactics with her. It was business, and that was that.

Other members of the cast were smart enough to pretend to ignore the Noyes-Halle feud. But they were secretly enjoying it. Jane Martel's smile and gaiety helped to lighten the situation in the studio. A place could never be like a morgue for long with Jane around.

From the broadcast, Myra went into the press department. There were a few things she meant to find out. She sought Joe Telling.

"Come downstairs and I'll buy you a highball, Joey," she offered smiling. "It's time for you to go anyway, isn't it?"

"Yeah!" He got up. "And a little drink won't do us any harm."

Joe was pretty sure he knew why Myra was so nice to him. But it didn't worry him much. Myra waited until they were having their second highball before she came to the point.

"Joey!" She looked up then. "Tell me something. Will you?"

"Maybe," he grinned. "Shoot."

"How come the press department let Romany Halle run for the television title?"

Joe slapped the table with his fist.

"By gad, that's a hot one! And the dame hasn't got a dime! Boy, is she smart! Well, she's certainly got the looks to go around trimming guys to get somewhere. No skin off my nose! Brent had the dough to pay for the pictures."

"The little tramp!" Myra said between clenched teeth.

"Hey!" Joe suddenly realized he'd been talking too much. "You got a grudge against the gal. Don't you go doing anything that's going to get me into trouble now?"

"Don't be silly!" Myra drained the last of her third highball. Joe had consumed five. "Well, I've got to be going, Joe."

She paid the check and rushed out, leaving Telling blinking after her, befuddled. Giggling to himself, he ordered another drink. Before the evening was over he'd told three other people, in strictest confidence, that Romany Halle was a farmer's daughter and not an heiress at all. And that Brent Nelson was putting up the money to make her a radio star.

Meanwhile Brent, spending one of his rare evenings at home reading, was interrupted by a knock on the door of his hotel room.

"Come in," he called from the living room.

"That girl's father and mother live in a little dump down in Leeville, Indiana, and they hardly know where their next meal is coming from. The clothes she's showing off with belong to her aunt who is in Europe. When she comes back and finds she's been wearing them, she'll probably murder her.

"You're crazy!" scoffed the skeptical Joe.

"Oh, am I?" Myra laughed unpleasantly. "Terry went to school with Romany Halle. She waited tables, took care of children and did everything to get through. Besides, she borrowed money from her aunt."

"Well," Joe grinned wisely, "so that's the setup! Well, that explains something that has been puzzling me."

"For instance!" Myra leaned toward him.

When Joe had a few drinks, his tongue had no brakes on it. He looked around cautiously, then said in a whisper:

"You won't say anything, Myra. Because if you do I might lose my job."

"Of course not," Myra scoffed.

"What sort of a heel do you think I am?"

"Do you really want to know where the money came from to pay for Halle's pictures?"

"Sure, tell me," urged Myra. "I'm dying to know."

Joe said thickly:

"From your ex-fiance."

Myra gasped.

"God's truth," Joe nodded. "He came in and wrote a check for two hundred bucks and said there was more where that came from. He got sore as hell when I let him see what I was thinking."

Myra bit her lip, a consuming anger sweeping over her.

"Of course it's clear now. Oh, I might have known, but I didn't think he'd give you that money because he wanted to show me up. He wants Romany Halle to win the title of Miss Television."

off the tracks on Second street.

King was struck by the west bound Baltimore and Ohio "Diplomat" Sunday. His body was tossed thirty feet by the engine.

Jim Meyers of Davis, W. Va., told police he had seen King pushing the car and attempted to persuade him to get off the tracks. King, he said, refused and was "practically" jerked from Meyers' hand by the train.

Sheriff J. W. Owens said Tasker was in the automobile when King was killed. The car was unsathed.

Record shows Tasker was riding in a truck with Whorton Rider on July 13, 1935, when it offered to help him get a job.

Chief's Attack On Parole Opens Hot Controversy

Magistrate Replies,
So Does Pastor;
Mayor Calls Parley

Relations between Chief of Police Oscar Eyerman and Police Magistrate Oliver H. Bruce Jr., were badly strained last night, after the chief started a growing controversy over the parole of a 24-year-old youth blamed for an epidemic of false fire alarms.

Chief Eyerman started the controversy by a blast at Magistrate Bruce for giving the youth back $75 of a $100 fine adn for awarding the remaining $25 to a police officer as a reward for catching the offender.

Reverberations Many

Reverberations of the chief's blast last night included:

(1) An icy reply by Magistrate Bruce.

(2) A spirited defense of Magistrate Bruce's action by the Rev. Jesse P. Dawson Jr., pastor of Grace Methodist church, who declared that such citizens as William A. Gunter, Dr. Joseph P. Franklin, and City Attorney Charles Z. Heskett had been consulted in the matter. The youth was paroled to Mr. Dawson.

(3) Mayor Harry Irvine announced he would call a "consultation" to thrash out the matter. The conference would include the parties concerned and Mr. Heskett, the mayor said.

Appeal Dismissed

Central and quietest figure in the controversy was Franklin C. Statler, the youth who police say confessed an "uncontrollable urge to pull fire alarms."

Statler had appealed his fine of $100, which was imposed Jan. 27 despite his repudiation of the alleged confession, but withdrew his appeal Monday when Magistrate Bruce ordered the sentence made by Trial Magistrate Bruce.

The youth was refunded $75 of the $100, and the balance of $25 was ordered paid to Detective Robert E. Flynn as "per reward offered, subject to the order of City Council," according to the docket entry made by Trial Magistrate Bruce.

Chief Angered by Parade

Visibly angered, Chief Eyerman declared, "the press and public were aroused by the series of false fire alarms which endangered the lives of firemen riding the trucks over the icy streets, and when the offender is finally caught, he is given a parole and the $100 fine is not received by the city."

Chief Eyerman then declared that an officer cannot receive a reward for "doing his duty, which he is paid to do."

The chief said he would demand an explanation from the magistrate and City Attorney Charles Z. Heskett, (who gave his consent to the parole because of Statler's physical condition, according to the docket entry.)

Bruce Not 'Lax'

In defending Magistrate Bruce, the Rev. Mr. Dawson declared, "There has been an effort to make him look lax, and such is definitely not the case."

"Judge Bruce and I and several other citizens in the city became interested in the lad. We felt there must be an unusual reason to prompt a boy to do what he did and give the explanation he did."

"I got into the matter at the request of the Rev. Walter F. Atkinson, the boy's pastor at Kingsley Methodist church. The Rev. Mr. Atkinson has been very ill."

We felt that this $100 fine was more important to Statler and his family than it was to the city. And no $100 fine is going to solve this youth's problem, and that is the important thing to be solved."

Another speaker was Mrs. George H. Barnard, chairman of the Women's Division of the Baltimore and Ohio C. T. P.

Mrs. Barnard stressed the work of the traffic program the women have been carrying out, pointed out that the chief objectives of the program were:

1—Securing business for the B. & O.

Banquet Speaker Praises Cumberland Railroaders

"They are mighty good stock and people who can be depended upon." That was the way Attorney Lewis M. Wilson characterized the "Railroaders" of the Baltimore and Ohio last night at what was termed the gayest party the B&O Veterans Association and its Ladies Auxiliary have held in a number of years.

One hundred eighty-five guests banqueted at the annual party at the Queen City hotel, with a number of guests present from Baltimore, and other railroad centers.

Col. Nelson Russler, former county commissioner asked the blessing prior to the dinner.

Walter Seel Toastmaster

M. G. Light, president of the Veterans, introduced Walter Seel, who proved to be an entertaining witty master-of-ceremonies.

Attorney Wilson, the principal speaker of the evening, lauded the loyalty of B&O employees to the management, and praised the employees.

The speaker referred to the tremendous part the B&O railroad has had, not only in the development of Cumberland but of the entire nation.

Railroad People Praised

Railroad men and women are good, solid stock, the speaker stated. They are people who are depended upon in time of emergency.

Another speaker was Mrs. George H. Barnard, chairman of the Women's Division of the Baltimore and Ohio C. T. P.

Mrs. Barnard stressed the work of the traffic program the women have been carrying out, pointed out that the chief objectives of the program were:

Gradual Thaw Dispels Flood Fears; Skiing Poor after Six Good Weeks

Freezing temperatures in the mountains to the west last night checked yesterday's thaw and served to dispel fears of a possible flood in Cumberland at this time.

Skiing conditions at New Germany were poor for the first time since Dec. 28, after four or more hours of rain yesterday and last night and temperatures around fifty.

The B&O dispatcher reported late last night that the mercury still stood as high as forty in Cumberland, but had dropped to twenty at Altamont.

Magistrate Frank A. Perdue was another jurist who drew the fire of Chief Eyerman yesterday.

Chief Hires Perdue Too

Chief Eyerman said two magazine salesmen were acquitted yesterday of charges of soliciting without a permit or license because Judge Perdue "doesn't believe the city ordinance in the case is legal."

"But that's up to Circuit court to decide, and not the magistrate," the chief said. "The accused men can take their case to a higher court if they are convicted and have the legality of the ordinance in the case is legal."

The two men dismissed were Solle Carger, of Chicago, Ill., and Frank Tugend, of Dalton, Pa.

Germany Issues Warning to All Neutral Ships

Berlin, Feb. 6 (AP)—DNB, the German official news agency, today republished a warning that neutral ships sailing in British convoys "expose themselves to all the dangers of war."

The comment was in connection with Swedish reports that the 6,873-ton Swedish freighter Pajala was sunk without warning Jan. 18 off the coast of Scotland.

DNB said nothing was known to German authorities of the sinking of the Pajala but noted that foreign dispatches said the vessel was in a British convoy. Consequently, the news agency said, she deliberately risked the danger of destruction without warning.

The muskrat hunting has been poor since the big freeze said one and most of the twenty-four entries have kept their five marsh rabbits on ice preparatory to the contest to be held tomorrow at noon.

Emmett Andrews, chairman, said only about a third of those asking for spectator seats in the state theater could be accommodated.

Among the seekers of $100 in prizes are three women, all local residents. They are Mrs. Curtis Insey, Mrs. J. T. Gray and Sadie Robbins. Other contestants are from New York, New Jersey, Delaware and Virginia.

The record set by George North of Cambridge last year in an exhibition contest, will be pressed by Delaware's two fastest skimmers, Harry Zackie and Raymond Diehl.

The skin by skin rounds will be broadcast against a background of music from the Cambridge high school big billy band. Contestants will do their skinning in threes.

Author Seriously Ill

Palo Alto, Calif., Feb. 6 (AP)—Charles G. Norris, author, is seriously ill after suffering a heart attack last Saturday.

The afternoon in Cumberland was spring-like although the mercury stayed only in the middle forties.

Dentistry Faces Problem Of Aiding the Needy

Dentistry is in the same boat with medicine, business, and government today—"face to face with the problem of the unemployed and the underprivileged," Cumberland clubmen heard yesterday.

The statement was made by Dr. J. Ben Robinson, dean of the Baltimore College of Dental Surgery.

In an address at a joint luncheon-meeting of the Rotary Lions, and Kiwanis clubs at the Fort Cumberland hotel.

"The greatest single problem confronting the dental profession today is the responsibility of distributing the fruits of the science and art of the profession to all who need its services," Dr. Robinson declared, pointing out that seventy-five percent of the population do not receive dental care in any given year.

"The distribution of dental services to all who need them should be made possible, just as every other factor of life should reach every worthy soul," he continued.

"But dentistry's problem of distributing its fruits to all who need them is an economic and social problem identical with the problem of shelter, food and clothing.

Must Have Aid

"Dentistry can assist in solving the problem, but it is hopeless when left to its own."

Dr. Robinson prefaced his remarks with a discussion of economic ethics and a brief history of dentistry.

He noted that "a one-sided approach to life's problem which considers only the selfish purpose, or the profit motive in business, is unjust as it should be futile.

Solution Not Easy

After careful study, the dental dean said he remained "unconvinced of the efficacy of such a plan."

"The same difficulties are present in such a program," he declared, "that appear when we attempt to solve the food and clothing problem of a large segment of our population."

The speaker went on to declare that he "reluctantly" reached the conclusion that the problem "will not be solved on an economic basis but on a sociological basis."

"It is not basically a problem of economics, but a problem of human conduct and weaknesses. By all that is rational, it is far from a political problem."

Dr. Robinson took issue with the theory that "social injustices" are altogether to blame.

Natural Inequalities

"Your experiences and mine and your study and mine of the various reactions of individuals to social pressures," he went on, "force us to conclude that natural social inequalities play at least a part equal to alleged social injustices."

"In any attempt to solve the problem, a clear definition must be made of the low-income groups, of the helplessly indigent and of the wilfully indigent elements of our population, and each class must be treated as its attitude towards its social responsibilities merits."
